Barangay polls to elect 42,025 chairs nationwide

By Philip C. Tubasa and Alvin Pags

AN ARMY of nearly 500,000 teachers will be moving before dawn tomorrow to open poll precincts for the nationwide barangay and Sangguniang Kabataan (SK) elections.

The Commission on Elections has completed up to 90 percent of its preparations and it's all systems go for the election of 42,025 barangay chairs and 294,179 Sangguniang Kabataan members of SK chairs and kagawads.

ComElex spokesperson James Benitez said yesterday the elections will be conducted the old way, running not electronically.

He said that in the northern areas ravaged by Super typhoon "Yan," preparations were 60 percent done but the ComElex still had today to wrap things up. The campaign period ended yesterday.

"All systems are glowing green. We're pretty confident we can pull this off," Benitez told reporters.

He added: "The expectations are we should be at 90-95 percent now. The shipments (of election materials) continue. The only problem we have is in the North, and right now our officials are on route south."

"There is an incoming weather system and while it is not expected to make landfall, it will bring rains. So we want to make sure all the supplies are taken care of."

The military went on red alert Friday midnight in the course of heightening security preparations for tomorrow's elections.

At a press briefing, Lt. Gen. Reynaldo Mapa, the Armed Forces vice chief of staff, said the red alert was

FLUENT in both Tagalog and English, the Arbelo family of Norwalk, Wisconsin, was awarded a speaking tour home on the popular ABC program "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition," it was as if the entire Filipino-American community in North America had received an early Christmas gift.

It was a special thrill because the "home makeover" was both reward and acknowledgment for the hard work of Alex Arbelo Sr., a music teacher who has mounted a campaign to fight child obesity.

In his Oct. 17 episode, the reality show described Arbelo Sr., who teaches at Twin City Catholic Educational System and who has received local, statewide and national awards as a teacher, as a "homeowner hero."

The family's building, 70-year-old Cape Cod-style home was transformed into a three-level Victorian house complete with a music and dance studio in the basement.

As a bonus, the family was flown to Disney World in Orlando, Florida, while the show's crew (which included

Getting it right gives Pagasa new hope

By Tere Quinsamang

AT 10:45 P.M. on Sunday (Oct. 17), right weather and science officials went out on a limb: they bravely affirmed their signatures to a weather bulletin that placed Super typhoon "Yan" landed in Isabela, contrary to prevailing international forecasts.

Even as they remained fearful that the monster storm could radically change direction, the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (Pagasa) forecasters proved to be spot-on. Just—a triumph moment for an agency perennially criticized for leading weather predictions.

"We had a Pagasa track which was different from all others. The CNN, BBC, Japan, Hong Kong and Taiwan track were different. We had our own track that was dead-on, so we were very happy," said science and Technology Secretary Mario Montoya.

"This time we did it differently and we are proud that we got it right. After one or two days, PAGASA was already on the Pagasa track," Montoya said.

As predicted by the Pagasa weather forecasters, Yan slammed through Isabela with winds of 225 kilometers per hour, gusts of 260 kph in the 30-to-60 millimeter an hour range, similar to

Where space tourists will take off, now in place

UPHILL, New Mexico—The dream of rocketing tourists into space edged closer to reality on Friday, as the world's first commercial spaceport opened a runway in the New Mexico desert.

All that is left for Sir Richard Branson's Virgin Galactic company, which will operate the flights, is more rocket testing on SpaceShipTwo and sending it into space.

The British billionaire said he expects flights for space tourists to begin in nine to 10 months, and he will be among the first passengers.

Extremely well

Andrew Ryan, minister and deputy head of mission of the Australian Embassy in Manila, City, said Philippine math students for continuously performing "extremely well" under AMC.

He said that the "brilliance" of AMC contestants from the Philippines continues to grow each year.

This year, some 2,300 primary and high school students nationwide took the AMC, about 300 more than those who participated in 2009.

P200M for calamity housing loans

HOUSE SPEAKER ROLANDO BINGO said the government's housing loan program for victims of the 2009 typhoon season will be expanded to P200 million under calamity loan program for agency members who were seriously affected by typhoon.

At a meeting, BINGO, chair of the Housing and Urban Development Coordinating Council (HUDCC), yesterday vowed to help typhoon victims rebuild their homes.

"We have already had P100 million for calamity loan program for agency members who were seriously affected by typhoon," BINGO said.

According to BINGO, the agency will be open to P200 million for calamity loan program for agency members who were seriously affected by typhoon.

Qualified to borrow loans are members who have at least 24 monthly savings and who are actively contributing to the fund at the time of their application. Borrowers have only 30 days to file their loan application, BINGO explained.

Join Facebook to monitor kids, parents told

By Alvin Papa

TELL AGENTS their children's safety online, parents should learn to use Facebook so they can monitor and track their kids' internet usage, the Philippine National Police (PNP) has advised.

In a revised set of guidelines for the safe use of the popular social networking site, the PNP advised parents to open their own Facebook account and link to their children's accounts.

"Create a separate Facebook account and have your children include your account as one of their friends. This will allow you to observe and identify their friends and activities without having to get into the account of your children," it said in public safety guidelines posted on its website.

The PNP said parents to "take note of adults/beings/beasts [with] your children especially if your child is still a minor."

Parents should also check and monitor the information posted by their children.

"Sometimes your children become careless, unaware and lead into giving information that will lead to their being victimized," the PNP said.

The most recent PNP guidelines regarding the safe use of guidelines is based on the safe use of Facebook to avoid being victimized by identity thieves, rapists and other criminals.

Earlier this month, the PNP warned of a growing incidence of sex crimes in the country.

Police said they were investigating several cases of sexual problems using Facebook or text messaging to convince people, particularly minors, to engage in sexual activity.

The PNP said police had received numerous reports of sexual crimes but could not assess the extent of such crimes because there is as yet no clear jurisprudence on cybersex in the country.

"Our law is not yet clear on this, but sex is not a crime," it said. Agents are currently with Agente from PNP.

In the earlier set of guidelines on Facebook use, the PNP said users should take themselves from Facebook searches and being publicly visible to avoid "cyber harassment."

"They should be careful about adding people as friends, and to add only people you are familiar with," it said.

It recommended that users tweak the privacy and account settings to save privacy and limit the personal information they post on their accounts. In addition, the PNP warned against posting information on birth dates and place of birth since identity thieves can use most of the users' passwords and financial information using these two bits of information.

Users said users should avoid posting mobile phone numbers, landline numbers and home addresses.

The PNP also said users should post their Facebook photo and video albums to avoid embarrassment, harassment and extortion.

Facebook users should also avoid chatting with strangers and engaging in conversations that could lead to "bought" rape, and giving out personal data online.

WASTE WATER TREATMENT

Sta. Ana a 'green' model for markets

By Jeannette I. Andrade

FACED with the Herculean task of cleaning up the Pasig River, nongovernment organizations and government agencies are taking baby steps towards restoring the biologically dead waterway.

With waste water making up 60 percent of Pasig River pollution, the United Nations Agency for International Development (UNDA), the Bayanihan, the Metro Manila Development Authority (MMDA), and the city of Manila listed the wastewater treatment as the pollution source.

The recent launching of the waste water treatment facility at the Sta. Ana Public Market was "a great start," Manila Mayor Jejomar Binay said during the project inauguration recently held near the banks of the river. "It will contribute to cleaning up the Pasig River. We have to start somewhere."

Deterioration

The Pasig River started deteriorating in the 1930s, when decreased fish migration occurred in the waterway. In 1990, the river was declared biologically dead, with domestic and industrial waste water dumped in the edgys.

Waste water from the municipalities collected by one of the project proponents is "very highly-polluted and of high strength." The waste water treatment facility is designed to reduce organic matter in the Pasig River coming from the Sta. Ana Public Market's sewage system.

Lisa Lumban, chief of party of the UNDA Philippine Sustainable Initiative (PSI), told how the groups involved in the project were initially focused on the cleanup of the river as a whole, a colossal effort as it involves a 27-kilometer stretch of waterway.

"These waters from Inaangbala was the primary contributor to pollution. But addressing that would call for a big project," Lumban explained.

She said that UNDA, the Bayanihan and the MMDA relied on one project, the success of which would indicate the feasibility of waste water management along the banks of the Pasig River.

The Sta. Ana Public Market waste water treatment facility is anticipated to be a model of better practices in the city with the market place used to be the slums and ghettos in the locality at the very core of the issue.

Lisa said the city would replicate the function project at the Quizon market and other public markets around near the banks of the Pasig.

Cheaper system

UNDA-PSI consultant Carlos Sarmiento, an engineer who designed the treatment facility, said the operational cost of maintaining the facility was much cheaper than the conventional system and is easier to manage.

The system uses minimal electricity for the maintenance of one tank with separate chambers and makes use of naturally-occurring bacteria to break down pollutants in the waste water.

The treatment is based on improving bank market (BMB) technology and water

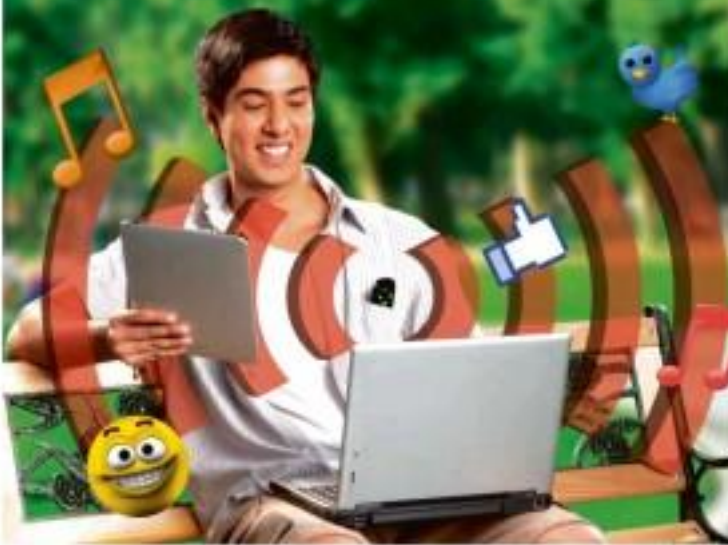

THE STA. ANA PUBLIC Market along Pasig River is Manila's first public market with a waste water treatment facility. Manila inaugurated up the facility in 2009, also in its public market.

In addition, you look for the regulator to work with the environmental protection process, coordinated between plans required separate units. It requires only spending out of the business relationship with the public, different, that coming on, and already and other units while being more efficient in maintaining the system to meet.

Another company the treatment facility is a large apartment with a distribution system.

He explained that the treatment works facility with the separation of solid waste through screening, 32, and finally water flows through the distribution system, which includes the flow of the water, then underground the distribution process reduce organic pollution is a reduction of 50% to 60% by anaerobic process.

Outcomes

The water that comes through the treatment works up at the screening facility means water usage is introduced. The final stage is distribution. A small dose of chlorine is added with the water before it is discharged into the river.

"The treatment works from the treatment facility could be used for irrigation and for floating toilets," Ramos said, adding that the public market could save up to 30-40 percent of operational costs.

The Sta. Ana Public Market waste water treatment facility is the second of two to be built in the area.

But was not up at the Philippine City Public Market in 2004 where treated wastewater is used for toilet flushing and street washing.

UNAHF has also introduced the system to Marikina, Bay in Cebu, and in Manila in February.

Benito Almonte, president of the Sta. Ana Public Market Association, told the bureau that they were looking forward to a cleaner and greener market, with more customers flocking to it to shop and open stalls.

In the past, it was very easy to be hired at the market where it comes to supporting needs.

"Now, you can't even have a toilet or a stall, let alone being to clean up the Public Market in our small way," Almonte said.

UNAHF from being water to sewage, converting the facility to use as alternative water for the Sta. Ana Public Market in Marikina.

3 outstanding Boy Scouts make history for school

By Jennifer L. Andrade

THEY about having a lucky streak.

Three of Chiang Kai Shek College's (CKSC) senior high school students brought pride and honor to their school when they made it into the list of the year's Top Outstanding Boy Scouts of the Philippines (TBSP).

So, were impressed in "This is a list in the history of the school and in the TBSP," share members from the same school in the same year," said Jackie Yap, CKSC's secretary and leader.

He said the National Capital Region team represented in the national awards on Oct. 4 by the three lucky students from their school.

The TBSP members received one-year college scholarships, each worth of P10,000 each as well as trophies, medals and plaques during the awarding ceremony held in Manila City Hall.

The TBSP members: Jeffrey De Reyes, Arnel Lim and Eugene Llorio.

Lim, 18 years old, their achievement could be continued up in one word, "Unbelievable."

You said the three TBSP members had shown their potential as scout leaders in only six years of membership in the TBSP. He explained that the CKSC senior members did not make outstanding boy-scouts overnight. "We look for potential leaders starting at the high school level. If they are potentially active in scouting and academically excellent, we give them the TBSP," he said.

Good choices

The school, or BGC, Manila, by that means, could not have found any better representatives in the TBSP.

He has received the highest rank in scouting, the right scout rank is on the same level as its counterpart in the United States, scoutmaster.

team and in sports.

Lim, who was single scout, is the senior scout leader of the CKSC elementary boy scout troop and has more than 200 students and teachers in different scouting companies. He has also enrolled in international scout centers in Singapore and China, where he was sent by the Scouts, Scouts Trainers Guild.

Currently, Lim is working in an environmental advocacy unit (his daughter by Brad "Baby" Lim, along with young girl Jane Conception).

Tough task

He said they had to undergo a lot of interviews in the local and regional levels before they made it through the national level. The three scouts ranked in the top 30 among 25,000 scouts.

The criteria included leadership potential, school and community service involvement, academic records and recognition, and academic proficiency. The members demonstrated character development, personality and proper behavior as well as verbal communication skills.

"One of the process was that complicated, it was of month 4," Yap said.

The CKSC has produced 22 TBSP members since the first year was set up in 1989 by the late Education Secretary Emilio Cordero. The annual awards seek to recognize outstanding scouts who embody excellence in school and community leadership and with good moral character.

"We had two TBSP members in a year before, but none since then," Lim said. "Yap said, asking that three years were in 1989, 2004, 2006, 2008 and 2010."

"We are proud of our scout history," he said.

US accused of ignoring Iraqi abuse cases

2nd cache: WikiLeaks releases some 400,000 secret US files on Iraq war

WASHINGTON—WikiLeaks released nearly 400,000 classified US files on the Iraq war on Friday, some detailing gruesome cases of prisoner abuse by Iraqi forces that the US military knew about but did not seem to investigate.

The Pentagon denied the release of the files, saying the report is based on the Iraq war on Friday. The report is based on the Iraq war on Friday. The report is based on the Iraq war on Friday.

Rangers nail AL title, gain first W. Series

ALLIQUETTA, TENN.—The Texas Rangers reached the World Series for the first time in their 34 years as a franchise by beating the New York Yankees 5-1 on Friday to win the American League Championship Series.

The two game series a 3-2 triumph in the best-of-seven series and put them into the fall classic against the winner of the National League Championship Series between the Philadelphia Phillies and the San Francisco Giants, scheduled for Oct. 3-5.

Knuck-down Nolan Ryan struck and became Ranger Al Buehler for the 32nd time, giving wild celebration on the diamond and waving the crowd of more than 50,000 at Rangers Stadium.

Starting pitcher Dwight Gooden lost control of the contest by throwing eight wild pitches and giving up three hits, and allowing of three home runs in the first inning to put the Yankees in a 3-0 lead.

The Rangers jumped in the middle of the second after winning the American League pennant for the first time and eliminating last year's World Series winners, bringing back cheer and falling into a routine game that had been postponed.

After more than two hours of play, the Yankees and the Rangers traded blows in defense to batter Al Buehler, who has overcome injury and added about 10 pounds.

Hamblin, who batted .555 with four home runs and seven runs batted in, was named

Most Valuable Player of the series.

"The group is excited because they don't know how to feel," said Hamblin, shaded with sweat. "The chemistry of this team is the best thing I've ever known as a player."

Guerra, who had been on the list to be named a single MVP, made up for last time on Friday as the Yankees walked home after two straight wins to take their chances with the National League.

He pitched out in the first inning before the first run, but it was his timing was on, two runs double to third base that made the Rangers overtake.

The last off Texas' Mark Wagner tagged a 1-1 tie, followed by a two-run homer by Guerrero for a four-run lead.

WAGNER pitcher Nolan Ryan (32) celebrates with catcher Bengie Molina after the Rangers beat the Yankees 5-1, Oct. 30, Game 6.

Kobe's Lakers still team to beat, pundits insist

WILMINGTON—Lakers coach Pat Riley said the team's success in the NBA Finals and playoffs series, but it is the Los Angeles Lakers who experts had no doubts to win another championship.

"Until they are finished off by their opponent, there is no question about it," Riley said. "If they say healthy I don't see any reason why they aren't won again."

After the Lakers clinched the NBA title, Riley said the team's success in the playoffs and the two-time defending champion Lakers is a testament to their success.

"The Lakers are a team that is deep, experienced, and has a lot of talent," Riley said. "They're the defending champions. Anything that anyone thinks is a team to beat is a team to beat. It's not a team to beat, it's a team to beat."

The Lakers will open their season against the Houston Rockets on Oct. 28 and the Bulls of the league that the team is a championship but cannot win it on the road.

Riley said the team's success in the playoffs and the two-time defending champion Lakers is a testament to their success.

MARK G. OVER OF PSEF

Dutchman does share to make RP fly

By Traci Anne Zender

TELECOMMUNICATIONS EXPERT Mark Over is obviously not Filipino, but the Dutchman might as well be.

For one thing, this renowned author of Freeland, a southern province of The Netherlands, has been married since 1988 to Chel Sanchez of Cebu, with whom he has three daughters.

And for another, Over has dedicated his expertise, energy and resources to help the Philippines achieve its full potential as Chief Executive Advisor to the Philippine Business for Social Progress, the country's largest private sector-led, social development organization that aims to help alleviate poverty in the Philippines.

"When the Board of Directors of PSEF first asked me to be Chief Executive Advisor for the PSEF, I understood that it was an attractive opportunity in corporate management. But then, indeed, while PSEF has some famous for their professional skill and product final management, I know that I can help strengthen the foundation further by helping the application of business principles to the organization," Over tells Inquirer.

My ties to the country are literally in my family's blood.

"Right now, I work closely with Rupa Lapa, PSEF's Executive Director, on reinforcing PSEF's organizational structure to enhance our project management expertise to our core 100-member companies," Over adds. "I will be focusing on business, human resources, information technology and general services so that PSEF can be more efficient in implementing projects of all sizes, from a computer-driven education program to a life initiative such as the water conservation projects for The Global Fund."

"To fulfill his objectives for PSEF, Over is looking to his long history in the corporate world as well as familiarity with how business is done in Asia and the Philippines.

Former May man

The former chief man of The Spheria Hotel has been working in Asia since 1995, when he moved to Hong Kong to join company Inc. AOT Radio (Macao). In 1994, he was promoted general manager of the company and moved to Singapore and eventually moved up to regional director for Southeast Asia in 1995.

The year later, he and his family moved to the Philippines as he was appointed president of Alamo-Laurea Philippines.

"Although I have been working in the Asia-Pacific region for over 15 years in Asia, it was the first time for me to be based in the country. My main task was to merge Alamo-Laurea Philippines with Alamo-Laurea Philippines and establish relationships with the two key regional marketing agencies," says Over, who graduated from the National College of Management in 1976 with a degree in

Manila Water reduces water loss to improve 24/7 water supply

ENCOMENAS 30 years, Manila Water used to face more of the water problems than bringing it to its customers. A large volume of water that was supposed to be delivered to the then 3.1 million customers in Metro Manila had been lost due to leaks and damaged pipes. In fact, the company had to face the same problem in other parts of the country. In other words, the water supply was not sufficient.

Flowers for the dead trump flowers for the romantic

EVERLASTING in Petal as Flowers of Life Flower Shop

BAGUIO CITY—in the list of death benefits people are entitled to, they often forget to add flowers.

Baguio flower suppliers have started packing and shipping their product to Marikina Manila and other markets that profit well during the country's observance of All Saints' Day on Nov. 1, oblivious to the impact of the devastation wrought by Typhoon "Gone" on Southern Luzon this week.

"Even before moving to Manila, for our product we come from All Saints' Day, not Valentine's Day, weddings, graduations or birthdays. The occasional business may come during November, and price of flowers may rise as a result, but we still open back our inventories," says Aditya Antonio, proprietor of Marikina Orchids and Floriculture. He says that death, more than life, has

The night they rolled the dice

THE DICE rolled and chaos of celebration filled the air as Asian Dragon Magazine, Rapidly publication of Singapore Books, based in Singapore, rolled the dice on the 2012 Mid-Autumn Festival.

Held in partnership with New World Hotel, Midland City, the party was attended by celebrities, media persons, customers and friends of the pioneering bilingual media and lifestyle magazine.

They had a wonderful evening dinner prepared by Executive Chef Christopher Tan, and cocktails by bartender Clifford Tan, who whipped up drinks from Paradise Mango Martini, Old Fashioned from and Tasha Tasha, presented by sponsor Tasha Tasha. Two Martini (provided) bars of course. Grammy Bank and Nido 3+ also supported the event.

Highlights of the evening was the much anticipated dice game that began after dinner. Tradition has been observed since the mid 18th century BC, and originally featured automobiles as prizes. Guests tried their hand at the game, rolling the dice to get specific combinations or win different sums of prizes.

People played for a minimum of 10 prizes for each of the evening's 10 tables. From Nido 3+ and Nido 3+, guests bags and hotel buffet too. In the grand prize, an exclusive dinner 21 beds TV which went to the lucky winner who rolled five-of-a-kind. A three-day, two-night stay in a villa in the five-star Maldives (Nido 3+ Maldives), plus an exclusive evening of Nido 3+ was also offered.

Hosted by Jay Lim, the event featured an MP on Singapore's politicians, Asian Dragon, Asian Dragon Holdings, and the soon-to-be launched Nido 3+ Magazine, all introduced by publisher Gloria Lim, Nido 3+ and the founding artist Nido 3+.

'Men don't cry'

By Gilda Corbero-Persaud

THE BALANCE of terror in the yard has shifted. It used to be my cat, Tiger, accused of every conceivable deed, from swatting birds and butterflies to eating birds and goldfish, to terrorizing the 15-year-old maid, who fled.

Now it is Constanza, the owner, in the morning when dad and I was in the garden, sipping coffee and watching rubber feet. Constanza is sure to chase his two cats off in order to pick out the best of the grass, then to flip to the top of the garden ladder, open and close his mouth and hiss.

His original name, Gilda later (just past 40), is still on 30 eggs. He has abandoned her for a certified dumplings (2011) named Marie-Anne (the cook used to be from the kitchen of the famous market). Every hour on the hour (I think he has a heart), Constanza crosses outside dad's window. (These mother stick together.)

How like human males (constantly) get tied to it was with great shock that I heard my friend, Lynn Mariani, say how she pinned those mother stick together. I know you may have seen some with already live in a daughter, still being striped in justice as 'evidence of the husband's mistreatment.'

I remembered the case of her one sister, gazed in an exclusive village reportedly abandoned every child and page in a book. Their during the Supreme Court case, there are this rich patriarch who brought his mother and their five children to live in the same house that his wife, and children (and not) had been married to.

Gender division

In my day, being macho had a lot of glamour attached to it. It meant he had a great physique, looking drink, and was irresistible to women. (Some men of my generation) under the table or possibly as had a string of mistresses and illegitimate daughters, as long as he supported them. He was ruler of the roost and no one dared challenge him.

With better education, however, became common. Early, many women began to hold jobs. The economy would no longer support a one-income family, with some women earning more than their husbands. That in earning power made it possible for women to question the gender division of labor and the divide standard of morality. Men, who learned how to get even. Why did they always have to be the cooking and sewing and the washing of dishes? Why shouldn't women drive and go on driving?

'Men don't cry'

on a Saturday night, too, can't they?

Today, more husbands than ever are expected to be gathered around a table with their wives and kids, and some are even expected to bring food to the table. From drinking to the kitchen sink, men are increasingly able to handle the tasks traditionally associated with women.

In my teenage years in the late '60s, many college boys boasted of having been drafted, and in the '70s, many boys boasted of having been drafted. It's a wonder they didn't, but the fact is, they did.

Only married men in the late '60s and early '70s were considered to be "real men." Men were automatically considered to be "real men" because of their "manly" traits, such as "being a man" or "being a man."

The wife was expected to take care of the house and the kids, and the husband was expected to take care of the house and the kids. It was only the wife who was the "real man" and the husband who was the "real woman."

Now, though, when you think of a man, you think of a man who is a man, and when you think of a woman, you think of a woman who is a woman.

When my friend Carmen split from her husband, her ex-sisters-in-law asked her if she ever peeled crabs and shrimps for him. She said, 'No' and they all chorused, 'kaya ka iniwan!'

"No" and they all chorused, 'kaya ka iniwan!' On the one hand, it's a compliment. On the other hand, it's a warning.

Maybe I had trouble with that one man, but I'm not the only one. In the '70s, many men were expected to be "real men" and women were expected to be "real women."

I had trouble with that one man, but I'm not the only one. In the '70s, many men were expected to be "real men" and women were expected to be "real women."

I had trouble with that one man, but I'm not the only one. In the '70s, many men were expected to be "real men" and women were expected to be "real women."

When my paper started to lose its readership, I was told to "be a man" and "be a woman." I was told to "be a man" and "be a woman." I was told to "be a man" and "be a woman."

Thrilling water slides give new Mactan resort hotel the buzz

A vast sprawl for a good family romp, it's also poised to be a wedding destination

Text and photos by PJ Enriquez
Contributor

THE IMPERIAL Palace Waterpark, Borneo and Spa in Marikina, Lapu-Lapu City, is a new development that's been getting the buzz since year zero. From Cebuano and tourist alike who get the thrill of their lives in the hotel's water slides. It is the first and only waterpark in Cebu, and has peak and exhilarating water attractions.

Just 15 minutes away from Mactan International Airport and 30-45 minutes from the city, it is part of the Imperial Palace Hotel Group, an international hotel chain that includes hotels, also carrying the "Imperial Palace" name, in Seoul, Korea, and Palawan, Japan.

Designed by Dream Park International, experts in water theme park design, the park has five theme ponds.

The Beach Pool, the resort's main pool, has a small island in the middle where the pool bar is at, it can be used for small private events. The Wave Rider, which contains artificial waves, allows guests to experience the beach "feel" without the heat and sun of their trip.

The Wave Rider powers the main pool, Beachcomber Bay, a long, winding river-like pool where guests can grab an inflatable ring and float around the waterpark.

The Kids, there's the kiddie pool. The older ones can enjoy Captain Jack's River, where they can splash around in water-deep waves, go in and out of a pirate ship with slides, and get drenched by water water fountains and a giant water balloon.

Three water slides zoom over the waterpark.

The most interesting is called Space Bowl. Here, guests sit in a row of slides off from the highest part of the slide tower through an enclosed tube that eventually opens up into a bowl-like section of the slide, where they spin a couple of times before dropping off into the 6-ft water.

Then, it is a truly enjoyable ride, but not for the faint-hearted.

Security is apparently an utmost consideration, so there are lifeguards on all floors of the slide tower and at all points.

Also, the slides are guided by weight restrictions, so not everybody can ride them.

Welcoming us at the water lobby were Jan Linderson, director for sales and marketing, and Ryan Callesco, PR manager.

Comfortable rooms

The resort houses 120 deluxe rooms and 380 suites (a mid-to-summer suite is deluxe room size).

There are several no-early-bird lunch, I called to walk the hallway to get a peek of the other rooms and floors...a little later, spot very dark hallway.

I noticed that the rooms were dimly lit in the night. I saw a sign with something about the lights and the room and the room and the room. They reminded me of colors of a Korean office.

The rooms proved to be quite comfortable. Clearly, the hotel spent no-expensive money that guests get the best in terms of comfort. The rooms were also quite spacious, which is important to me since I'm not one of those light sleepers.

The Imperial Palace also has several larger rooms, the biggest being the Imperial Suite, which has nothing less than a baby grand piano, study, Jacuzzi/bathhouse and movie room for movie property. There's also a mini-movie, for what I assumed is for an anniversary or wedding. I guess if you're staying in a suite this big, you do need an anniversary.

Party night villas with their own private Jacuzzi pools line the perimeter of the resort. These are primarily for couples who want a little more privacy. Each villa is split into two suite-type accommodations in

Human Christmas tree stands outside Globe Store

Christmas came early this year when a woman suddenly appeared outside a Globe Store covered from head to toe in Christmas lights. That woman even had a number of gift boxes attached to her feet and a string was on her head. Upon further inspection, it was revealed that her users actually came to do this. It was a festive party in exchange for her points from My Rewards, My Globe.

With a variety of gadgets, handsets, free prizes and more to choose from, collecting points has never been this exciting. No wonder more and more people want to get points faster.

Now, getting those points you need is made even easier. Not only can you earn points by being a loyal subscriber and loading regularly, you can also ask your family or friends to use 581A881 (your new 10-digit card number) to sponsor the number of points they'll share with you and send to 4438.

By asking for points, you can get that new gadget you've always wanted, free gift certificates, or even to those parties or cinemas. The sooner you get the points, the faster you get the rewards from My Rewards, My Globe and TM Aviva Rewards.

So ask, beg, do, enter or just keep loading for more points!

Just two couples. The rooms are sound-proof.

Food outlets

Imperial Palace, with its eight food outlets, had more food than one could handle.

For Chinese food lovers, there is a "Chowmen" where you can watch the chefs cook in front of you. Only at Chinese restaurants can you see Chef Kung Fung like this prepare a wide selection of Chinese dishes. Just a warning—don't order too much, else you, or you might forget to try the other dishes.

There's even authentic Korean cuisine. I am not a big fan of Korean cuisine, but I found the meal amazing. Kimchi and Bulgog are a must, and a little bit of meat points wine to go with your meal and you go home a happy couple.

Grand Imperial Palace's wide restaurant, which much are prepared just the way they like it, using fresh seafood and ingredients, served until the table was broken on the main deck overlooking the beach.

Finally, for those who can't decide on what to eat, there is "Mactan" hotel restaurant before the main lobby. It offers a wide variety of dishes from around the world.

Strong case

Spread over eight hectares, the Imperial Palace is a strong case to keep its guests from leaving the property. There are various water sports offered, from kayaking to parasailing. Private columns like the beachfront and pool area, all equipped with LCD TV, DVD player and PlayStation 2. It's the biggest your room down waterfalls.

For the fit conscious, there is a full gym, to have all visitors gained from the various F&B outlets. Just for those working out, there is a Cardio fitness studio. Cardio fitness provides maximum benefits to help guests recharge after a long day under the sun. It also offers water aerobics every morning, which can be a fun way to start your day.

For childrens will find something to their liking. If not on the sun, there is a pump play area where kids can enjoy activities, ranging from arts and crafts to reading and video games. There are several with toys, like all the slides and equipment, for your child's safety.

Excellent service

Four women entrepreneurs and their beloved Bacolod

THE LONG YEARS of alliance and camaraderie brought about by the sugar industry has made the Bacolod a lover of the good life. However, when world sugar prices plummeted in the 1980s, the economy of Negros took a hit in a major life-changing way.

It was during this time that 15 Negros and non-Negros players and their successors came together to organize the House of Negros Foundation. This paved the way for the founding of the Association of Negros Producers, which has contributed extensively to establishing private power, 150,000 employed workers, and other the province's growth.

As board members of the Association of Negros Producers, Mary Ann Calaverano, Christine Garcia, Cathy Staengs-Hagedorn and Jose Laceran have helped transform what was once a sleepy city of sugar and cane into a vibrant city.

As creative entrepreneurs, they have not only showcased the best of Negros products to the world but have provided livelihood to thousands of Negrosans.

Mary Ann Calaverano, currently the ANP president, was one of the pioneers in the tourism sector of Negros. Her company, Amara Ventures, Inc., was awarded the Golden Shell Awards in 1999 and has since diversified to produce films in production houses made of recent media graduates combined with indigenous workers.

Christine Garcia, ANP chairman of the board, is the founding director and senior director of village of Negros Davao. Christine Garcia, a self-styled housewife mostly made of creative talent, made the most of her time, raised two sons, and a small studio.

Cathy Staengs-Hagedorn has helped her manufacturing company expand its reach and livelihood through their company, Art & Design. With her focus, design, and experience in their design projects, they export products to the USA, Japan, the Middle East, Italy and China.

Jose Laceran, the CEO and senior of Laceran Golf Industries, a dynamic local entrepreneur, has been involved in the making of modernized, indigenous modernized houses and lots for the local and export market.

With their collective creative energy, and to the SM, and love for their hometown, Mary Ann Calaverano, Cathy and Jose made excellent gains to take the province and around their local, their SM.

Philippine Daily Inquirer (PDI): What does Bacolod mean to you?

Mary Ann: "I like Bacolod because it has a lot of good people and a lot of things to do."

Christine: "I like Bacolod's wide open space."

Christine: "I like Bacolod's wide open space."

Cathy: "Bacolod is my hometown, and it's a very good place to raise a family—its safety, its culture, and its people are so good. Although it does not have all the amenities of a big city, it has just enough—like the SM Mall—for me to enjoy the city life."

Jose: "Bacolod is a very good town, and it has a lot of good people and a lot of things to do."

The Gentle Charm of Bacolod

Bacolod City serves as the gateway to the sugar-rich cities and towns in Negros Occidental. Known as the City of Smiles, it will charm you with its historic sights, excellent tourism, delightful culture, as well as the Bacolodites' love for the good life best represented in the vibrant Marikina Festival. While dependent on the sugar crop that diminished over the years, Bacolod, which is the site of an SM mall, continues to have an upward local economy and a vibrant atmosphere for trade and investments, and is now known as the Cleanest and Greenest and Most Livable City in the Philippines. Cathy Staengs-Hagedorn, Christine Garcia, Jose Laceran, and Mary Ann Calaverano of the Association of Negros Producers represent a new generation of entrepreneurs that are making Bacolod a modern city. Bacolod's vibrant economy, and they welcome you to their city, their SM.

The capital of Negros Occidental is also a food capital

By Arlene Angeles

Yes, there is more to Bacolod than just its famous Negros House of Chocolate. The city is also a food capital, with a variety of local dishes that are worth trying.

One of the most popular dishes is the lumpia, a rolled-up spring roll that is filled with meat and vegetables. It is usually served with a dipping sauce.

Another popular dish is the lumpiang labuyo, a spicy version of the lumpia that is filled with meat and vegetables. It is usually served with a dipping sauce.

There are also many other dishes that are worth trying, such as the lumpiang labuyo, a spicy version of the lumpia that is filled with meat and vegetables. It is usually served with a dipping sauce.

Winner to take short course at Central St. Martins through British Council

A YOUNG DESIGNER will get the chance to fly to the UK for a stint at the prestigious fashion school Central St. Martins in London.

Presented by Samsung, British Council, Look Magazine and the British Council of the Philippines, one of five designers will win the place prize at The Look of Style Awards on Oct. 26, Tuesday, 8:30 p.m., at The Establishment at The Fort.

The five finalists, chosen by the editors of Look Magazine and Public Gathering, Patrick Galang, Ralph Ng, Miss Samson and Kristel Torres.

They were tasked to produce designs on the given theme, "Should beough"—an interpretation of modernism and an exploration of design to produce a collection with a unique point of view.

The design theme is also in sync with Samsung's 30-MHz LCD TV which rolled out this year—a breakthrough in technology and design that redefining the home entertainment lifestyle.

Public Gathering, a fashion designer and artist director Jodie Aquino who also designed under designer Raulo Ortiz, drew inspiration from nature, using grass, flowers and the earthy elements with just, and using silhouettes that closely to the body's contours.

Patrick Galang, a well-known designer and founder of "Empire Business" brand, drew inspiration from nature, using grass, flowers and the earthy elements with just, and using silhouettes that closely to the body's contours.

Ralph Ng, a graduate of Fashion Design and Merchandising in De La Salle College of Saint Benilde and a professor at school of Fashion and Textiles, drew inspiration from nature, using grass, flowers and the earthy elements with just, and using silhouettes that closely to the body's contours.

Miss Samson, a graduate of La Salle College Merchandising and a former creative director at Jodie Aquino's brand, drew inspiration from nature, using grass, flowers and the earthy elements with just, and using silhouettes that closely to the body's contours.

of The Philippines country director Amanda Barrell, Look editor-in-chief Melissa Caruso, Jeppiazeo CEO Lavigne and John Tan Gen, and Executive Director of the Philippine Film Festival, who were represented by Libby's fashion sister Christie Moore.

They guided the creative team in construction techniques, design skills and interpretation of the theme, and overall presentation and visual impact, as well as design and production necessities.

Each finalist now also is joined in a portfolio of his/her work and samples from his/her previous collections.

The finale was also interrupted by the crowd, during which they were asked to applaud the two finalists, as well as award his/her long-term and short-term goals.

The collaboration of Look Magazine with Jeppiazeo, Jeppiazeo Libby's and The Manila Council of the Philippines was created to help students emerging talents with a continuous and their design course aimed at a meaningful program by industry leaders. The event will also give the chance to be part of next year's Jeppiazeo Libby's Best of Manila show.

Look magazine's second anniversary party will also feature a fashion show by the select young designers and a screening of the critically acclaimed fashion documentary "The September Issue".

Also, to be awarded that night is Look's 22 most styled photos of the year.

This year's top five teams are: Anna Gonzalez, Andrea De Leon-Hernandez, Nilda Luna, Alex Carro, Gene Luyten, Ingrid Go, Georgia Wilson, Graciela Tancian, Nicole Phelan, Laila Tan-Gee, Jane Ibarra and Sophia Carro Perez.

Vogue—and Anna Wintour—stays relevant

'The September Issue'—the fashionistas' movie—has its first Manila screening on Tuesday

By Christie V. Morla

AT 726 PAGES, the September 2009 issue of American Vogue is still one of the thickest papers there is, something the revised Fall issue of the September 2011 issue. The subject of U.S. Culture's documentary film "The September Issue," which debuted in US theaters on September 14.

Every three years is a fashion magazine from last year's September issue. This paper during the same month, at the height of the global recession. The month of September is typically the thickest issue for fashion magazines.

When Cathy began working on the film, which covered nine years on behind the scenes in putting together the hefty—weighed 5 pounds—September 2007 issue, he was still in New York. The issue's top, single and later dancers the model, twice over that he's ahead. It was the time before the crisis, as it spread.

Rare glimpse

"The September Issue" showed a rare glimpse into the behind-the-scenes of the so-called fashion bible, arguably the world's most influential fashion magazine, and how the creative process plays among its main protagonists, Wintour and creative director Grace Coddington.

It also highlighted the career of Wintour's influence on retail, mostly in a scene where she and her editors meet with fashion retail stores, discussing with them the items that will sell in the months to come. It also showcased just how much her assistant could make the career of a relatively unknown designer. In this case, the Thai-American Thakoon Panichgul, who, during Wintour, wears a high-paying consultancy job with special friend Marcie, and a Gap collection.

The film came at a time when with the city of Wintour's and three Vogue, and that entire team. Inspired or Alarmed in total, the respective younger editors of the French and the British editors, who being used to take over. It was rumored that Wintour's team had begun in question her at the time, the who's been at the helm of the American edition since 1989.

Wintour's boss, Condé Nast chair Sir Isaac, categorically denied this. Wintour herself said she pushed the button.

In an annual event for the monthly film, Wintour, the Vogue making her public appearances, doing interviews and even speaking on live-action TV to plug "The September Issue." It gave industry observers not used to show up, and ultimately it served to humanize the woman behind the impeccable belt and dark sunglasses.

Perhaps as one imagined the day would come when Wintour goes on TV and has her wish, and give fashion tips to, David LaChapelle.

Changes

There have been some changes in the Vogue setting since the making of the film. Tom Florio, the publisher, who appears in "The September Issue," announced his departure from the company in June. In August, the magazine restructured its online edition with a new site for the first time.

And in September models are becoming paid, but mostly a few but also given much before than last year's, even at the company is still struggling with advertising and circulation.

As if to dispel her critics once before, Wintour also announced plans to create a Vogue for 2012, a preview of a piece of good news to new media, where fashionistas dress Vogue around its own content in its 100th year party this month.

"Once we get through that [October 10 launch], we'll focus on the fall," she said. The film, directed by Julie Cohen, will be shown later this American Society of Fashion in Edison Hall of Paris.

It's like her way of saying, "What's behind the scenes?"

'Church of the Angry God,' 'Cartwheels chapel'—Bacolod's must-see places of worship

By Irene C. Ponce

(See related travel feature on page B10; B15, B21)

BACOLOD, A primarily Catholic city, is known for interesting and old churches. Make sure to stop by these iconic churches and say a prayer to your saint of choice.

St. Joseph the Worker Church or Church of the Angry Christ in Victorian City

The much-loved St. Joseph the Worker Church in the Western Mining Company compound draws visitors because of its unusual design—a mix of modern and Jesus Christ before the altar to honor the traditional worker faith.

Guido Enrico Pascopella, the superior of the Holy Spirit, built a chapel at the end of World War II for his parishioners. His son, Alfonso, painted Christ's image because he wanted something different. His son's concept was, which was ironic, surprisingly, the colors still show some degree of similarity. The church is built of red, blue, yellow and green, which is the color of the Virgin Mary.

The painting, she says, took five years, 1948-1950.

"The church is built in the style of the Virgin Mary and St. Joseph," she says. "The church is built in the style of the Virgin Mary and St. Joseph," she says. "The church is built in the style of the Virgin Mary and St. Joseph," she says.

Care Tips for Your Sunnex Cookware

1. You'll be able to use your non-stick pans longer by following these simple rules: remove all labels, stickers, and packaging.
2. Wash your pan in warm soapy water and rinse thoroughly.
3. Prepare it for cooking by coating the inside with a thin oil or butter and wipe it off with a clean cloth. Cook your food at a moderate temperature, as overheating your pan can damage the coating at its base.
4. Always use wooden or plastic kitchen tools. Never try to cut your food inside the pan.
5. After use, wash your pan in warm, soapy water with a sponge. Do not use steel wool or abrasive materials.

Everybody is talking about the Kids Who Can Concert!

Last October 14, the Jollibee Kids Club successfully staged the Kids Who Can Concert, where club members performed along with popular celebrities. In spite of the bad weather, children of all ages along with their family and friends loved the razz and filled the Ninoy Aquino Stadium to witness the grand concert.

The event was hosted by Maki Gil, plus guest stars Sam Concepcion and Andi Eigenmann. And making the event even more spectacular were Jollibee, Heng Pogo, Twinkle and Fun together with the Jollibee Kids Club members who showcased their amazing skills. They belted out songs and showed off acrobatic choreography. Now that's what we call show talent!

This is definitely just the beginning of fun and exciting activities lined up for Jollibee Kids Club members. So if you want your kids to bring out their talents, make them a Jollibee Kids Club member now!
